

The Adventures of Bashy Moonie

A collection of short stories for children created by the students of Education Plus High School

Inspired by Oliver and Max

Once upon a time there were two brothers named Oliver and Max. One day when they were very young, they made up a word to describe the action of someone misbehaving. That word is Bashy Moonie. When someone does something they are not supposed to do, or says something rude, they might be accused of being bashy moonie. As it is a made-up word, we felt it could be used in a variety of ways; as a label for a disobedient person, to describe an activity that is naughty, or even as someone's name.

We hope you enjoy reading our Bashy Moonie stories as much as we enjoyed creating them!

BASHY MOONIE AND THE LEFT WINGED BIRD

By Genster the Bennie

- One day, there was a gentle bird, sitting alone on a tree branch. He had 3 lovely children whom he cared for. He himself had only one wing, so had to steal a jetpack from a local corner shop to get around.

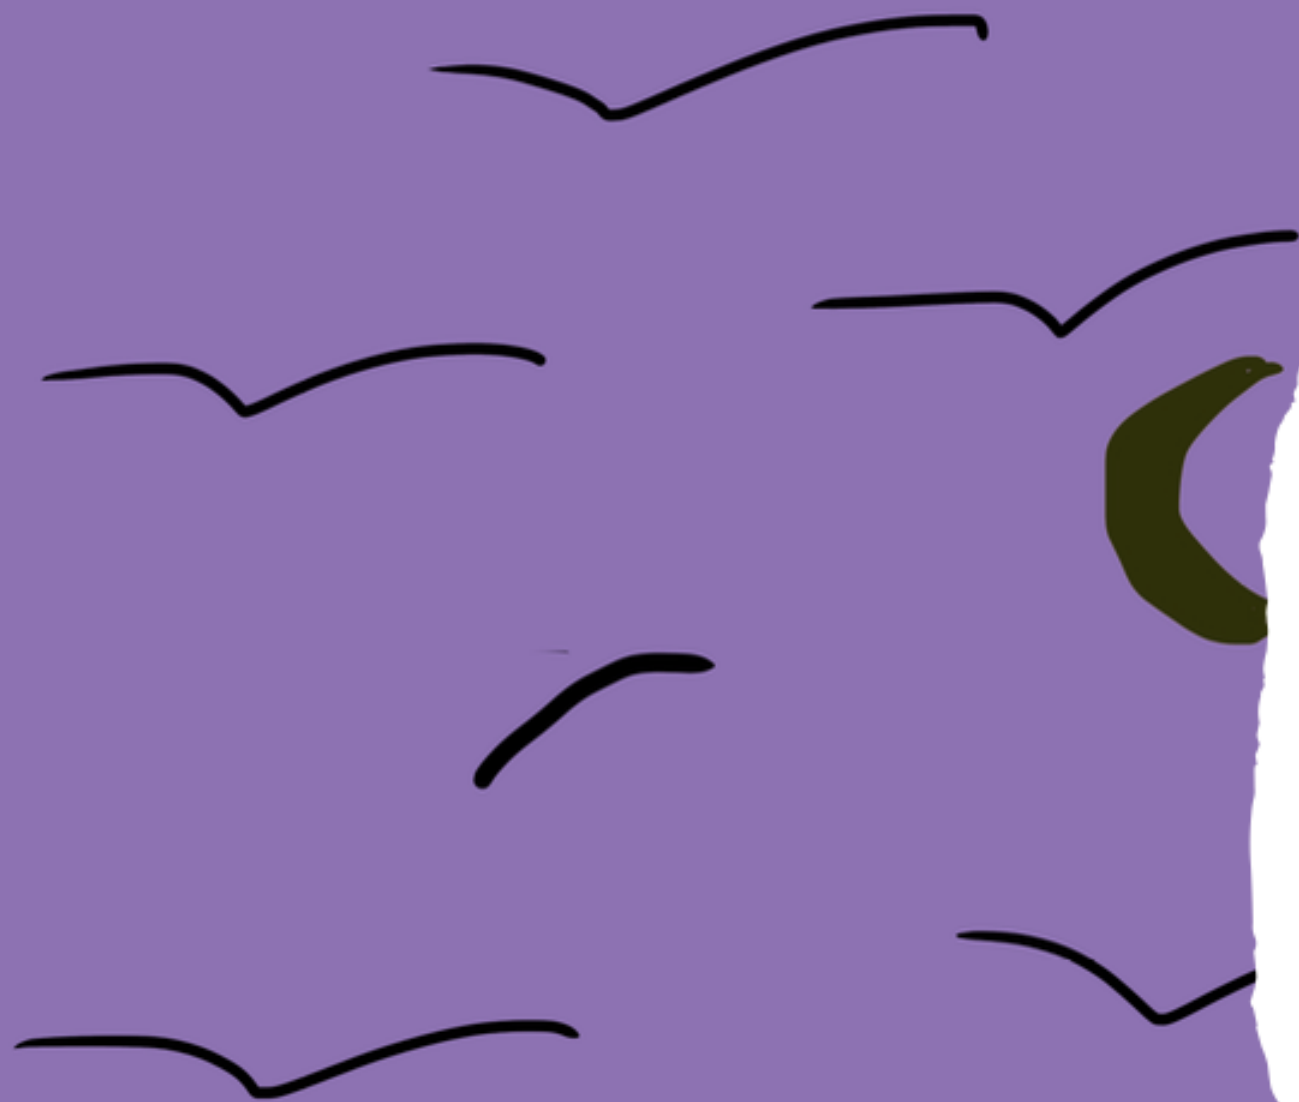

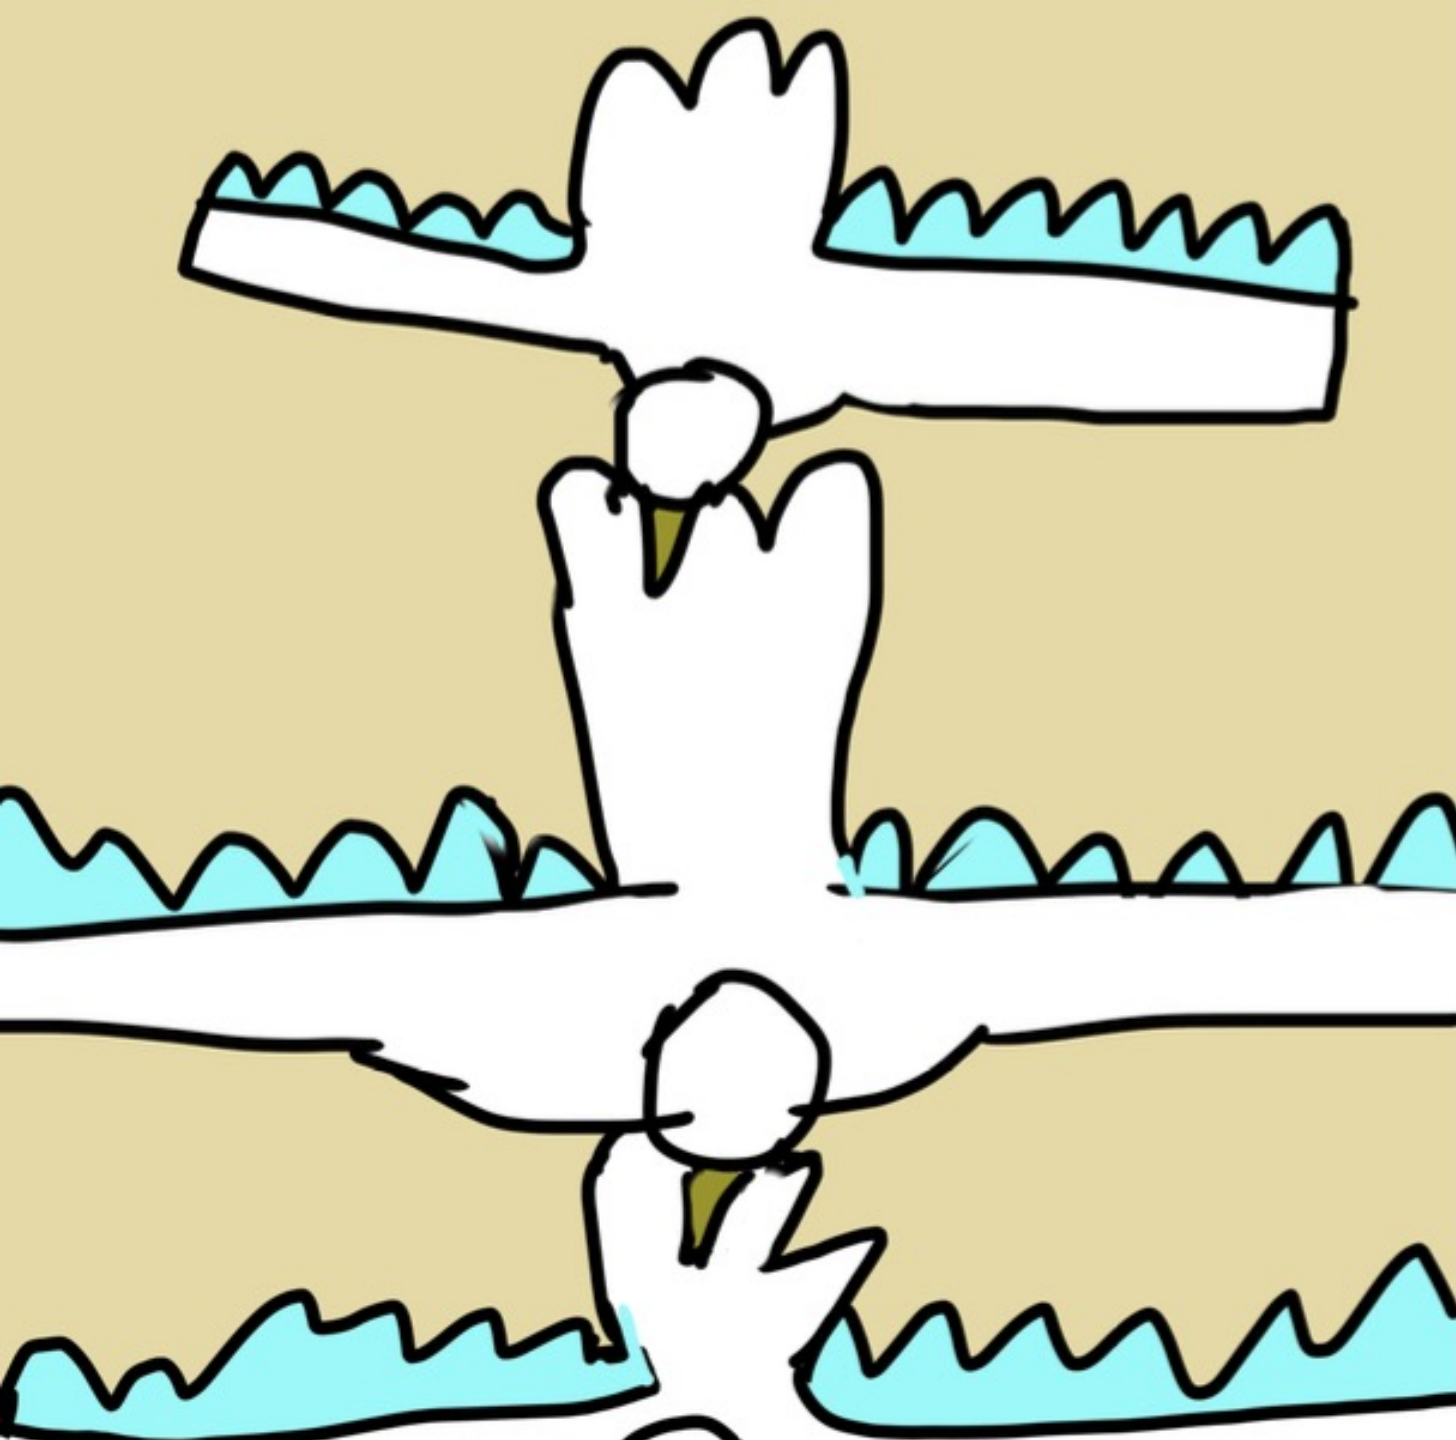

- Then, bashy moonie, a mysterious bad guy, saw the bird. “Wow, you have one wing but you can still sit alone on some twigs!” He cried, and then followed the bird to see what it finds. It led him to his nest, and said, look after my 4 kids while I go for a rest. He looks around, then wonders off as he finds something else to peak his interest!

- Bashy moonie is gone, and the eggs are hatched with no one there to stay and react. The father comes back and then pecks bashy moonie a lot on his hat!

- You see, the bird was left-winged and needed no wife to take care of his life! He was the only one with one wing, and loved to be part of this strife. A fight where no-one cares, and you are what you are, and people don't start to stare.

- But soon enough, the kids grew up, and they had two wings instead of one. There was zilch, no sign of another birdie with only one left wing; all out of luck.

- But in the end, all of his friends got together and partied again. So finally, this is the end of the story of bashy moonie's left winged glory!
